

Requesting a UN Speaker

The Group Programmes Unit in the Visitors Services Section of the UN's Department of Global Communications manages the UN's Speakers Bureau. Having a UN specialist address your group on a particular area of interest is a great way to learn more about the important work of the Organization. UN speakers travel to speak to groups across the US, and groups who visit the UN can also arrange to be briefed by a UN expert onsite. In light of the current situation, a third option is to arrange to have a UN speaker address a group remotely, in any number of formats. The UN welcomes the opportunity to share information about its work.

More information can be obtained on the UN Visitor Centre website, visit.un.org, or by emailing briefings@un.org.
